

LITERATURE REVIEW, PLAGIARISM AND CITATIONS

AGENDA

1. What is a Literature Review?

2. What is the Purpose of Literature Review?

3. What are the Steps to Write a Literature Review?

i. Defining Your Research Topic or Question

ii Searching for Relevant Literature

ii. Evaluating the Most Relevant Sources

iii. Organizing the Literature

iv. Writing the Final Draft

4. What is plagiarism?

5. How to Cite Your Sources Properly?

1. WHAT IS A LITERATURE REVIEW?

Literature refers to books, e-books, book chapters, research articles, dissertations, scholarly discussions, published materials from government organizations, publications by research bodies, among others. Depending on your field and topic, it can also include documentaries, videos, audio clips, images, etc.

To review means to:

- describe (author, date of publication, publisher, media, genre, etc.),
- summarize and interpret (the main ideas, arguments, observations, findings, etc.),
- critically evaluate (Why is it important? Is the argument sound? What are the loopholes in the argument?)
- and connect it to existing research.

“A literature review surveys and analyzes published information on a topic in a subject area, within a particular timeframe. It involves both summarizing and synthesizing sources.”

2. WHAT IS THE PURPOSE OF LITERATURE REVIEW?

- It provides the history and evolution of a concept, idea or argument.
- It enables us to contrast and compare existing research works.
- It helps identify the relevance of the researches done in the field.
- It provides context and background for your own research.
- It helps identify your position with regard to the previous research on the topic.

- It can help identify new methods for research.
- It can help identify research gaps and questions.
- It prevents us from repeating what others have done in their research.
- Lastly, it builds credibility by demonstrating comprehensive understanding.

SERTATION

WEBSITE

HOME ABOUT SERVICES CONTACT

PAMPHLET

CTYPE

BOOK

PERIODICA

3. WHAT ARE THE STEPS TO WRITE A LITERATURE REVIEW?

I. DEFINE YOUR RESEARCH TOPIC OR QUESTION

Before reviewing literature, clarify:

- a. What is your research question or hypothesis?
- b. What are the key themes or keywords?

Example: If your research is on “The impact of social media on mental health in teenagers,” you might focus on:

Social media

Adolescent mental health

Depression, anxiety, self-esteem

Digital cultures

II. SEARCHING FOR RELEVANT LITERATURE

- a. Narrow down your topic. Limit the scope of your research.
- b. Identify the repositories and databases.
- c. Look for the most current and recent works done.

Tools

Databases: Google Scholar, JSTOR, Scopus, Web of Science

University libraries, databases, bibliographies, archives, etc.

Use keywords: Use different terms, phrases, etc related to the topic

Zotero, Mendeley, or EndNote for citation management

III. EVALUATE AND STUDY THE MOST RELEVANT SOURCES

- a. Is the source peer-reviewed?
- b. Is it recent (last 5–10 years unless it's a landmark study)? Is it still valid?
- c. Is it relevant to your research question?
- d. Does it add new insight or support your theoretical framework?

IV. ORGANIZING THE LITERATURE

The literature reviewed needs to be compared and contrasted. The works can then be classified or organised on the basis of different criteria:

Thematic (grouped by topics/themes)

Chronological (how research evolved over time)

Methodological (grouped by research methods)

Theoretical (based on frameworks or models)

V. WRITING THE FINAL DRAFT

- a. Don't summarize every study — synthesize ideas.
- b. Stay focused on your research goal.
- c. Keep your tone objective and analytical.
- d. Avoid too many direct quotes — paraphrase where possible.

The final draft of the literature review can be written using the following format:

Introduction

- Brief overview of the topic
- Define scope
- State the purpose of the review

Body

- Summarize key studies (avoid just listing them)
- Group them by themes or trends
- Compare and contrast findings
- Identify patterns, contradictions, and gaps
- Use transitions between themes and studies

Conclusion

- . Summarize main insights*
- . Highlight gaps in research*
- . Show how your research will address one of those gaps*

Revise and Proofread

Check for clarity, logical flow, concise language, proper citations and plagiarism.

Literature Review Example:

Theme: Social Media and Adolescent Anxiety

Several studies have examined the impact of social media on adolescent anxiety. For instance, Huang (2017) conducted a study and found a small but significant correlation between social media use and anxiety levels. In contrast, Allen et al. (2019) suggest that the relationship is “bidirectional,” with anxious teens more likely to engage in excessive social media use (323). This discrepancy highlights the need for studies to further look into the relationship between adolescent anxiety and social media usage. Moreover, while most research focuses on quantity of use, few studies differentiate between passive and active engagement (Orben & Przybylski 2020). The present study thus seeks to study the nature of social media engagement of adolescents generating feelings of social anxiety to address this gap in literature.

4. WHAT IS PLAGIARISM?

Plagiarism is the act of using someone else's words, ideas, data, or work without giving them proper credit and presenting them as your own. It is a serious violation of academic integrity.

Example:

Plagiarized: Digital tools improve academic writing efficiency. (copied from a source, no citation)

Correct (with citation): Digital tools can significantly enhance the efficiency of academic writing (Sharma 2022).

Or

As noted by S. Sharma in his book Academic Writing (2022), digital tools can significantly enhance the efficiency of academic writing.

Types of Plagiarism (with Examples)

i. Direct Plagiarism (Copy-Paste)

Copying text word-for-word without quotation marks or citation.

Example: When you copy a paragraph from a website and submit it as your own.

ii. Paraphrasing Plagiarism

Changing a few words but keeping the same structure and ideas without citation.

Example: Slightly modifying a sentence but not acknowledging the source.

iii. Self-Plagiarism

Reusing your own previous work without citation.

Example: Submitting the same essay for two different courses.

iv. Mosaic (Patchwork) Plagiarism

Combining phrases from multiple sources without proper citation.

Steps to Avoid Plagiarism

1. Cite All Sources Properly

Always acknowledge the original author using a citation style (APA, MLA, Chicago).

2. Use Quotation Marks for Direct Quotes

When using exact words, put them in quotation marks and cite.

Example: “Academic writing requires clarity and evidence” (Brown 2020, 45).

3. Paraphrase Correctly

Read the original text, rewrite it in your own words and then change structure and vocabulary. You still need to cite the source.

Example: Original in B. Lee (2022): “Technology enhances collaboration in writing.”

Paraphrase: Technology enables writers to work together more effectively (Lee 2022).

Steps to Avoid Plagiarism

4. Summarize When Needed

Condense main ideas in your own words and cite.

5. Keep Track of Sources

Maintain notes of all books, articles, and websites used.

6. Use Plagiarism Detection Tools

Check your work using tools before submission.

7. Plan and Manage Time

Avoid last-minute writing, which often leads to copying.

5. HOW TO CITE YOUR SOURCES PROPERLY?

Citation styles are comprehensive set of rules about writing style, presentation, editing, referencing and creating bibliography in academic writing.

There are different citation styles available to researchers, some of which are discipline and subject specific.

Some of the most common citation styles are:

- MLA (Modern Language Association): Literary studies, modern languages and literatures, media studies, cultural studies, and other humanities fields.
- APA (American Psychological Association): Psychology, nursing, business, communications, engineering, and social sciences.
- Chicago Manual: Used in science, history, library science, business, philosophy, religion, anthropology, and the arts.

MLA STYLE (MLA HANDBOOK 9TH EDITION)

- The style guidelines tell us about:
- Formatting and page layout
- How to use abbreviations, footnotes, quotations, images, etc.
- Citing sources
- Preparing manuscript for publication.

IN-TEXT CITATIONS: Referring to works by others in your text.
Uses author-page method.

- According to William Wordsworth, poetry is a “spontaneous overflow of powerful feelings” (263).
- Poetry as observed by William Wordsworth is a natural outpouring of potent feelings (Lyrical Ballads 263).
- Poetry can be considered a “spontaneous overflow of powerful feelings” (Wordsworth 263).

WORKS CITED:

Wordsworth, William. Lyrical Ballads. Oxford UP, 1967.

WORKS CITED – MLA STYLE

- Double-space everything.
- Use a hanging indent (first line flush left, subsequent lines indented 0.5 in).
- Alphabetize entries by the author's last name (or by title if no author).
- Use italics for larger works (books, journals, websites) and quotation marks for shorter works (articles, chapters, web pages).
- MLA 9th Ed. uses a template of 9 elements when available:
Author. Title of Source. Title of Container, Other Contributors, Version, Number, Publisher, Publication Date, Location.

WORKS CITED LIST – MLA STYLE

a) Book

Last name, First name. Title of Book. Publisher, Year.

Example: Morrison, Toni. Beloved. Vintage International, 2004.

b) Journal Article (print or database)

Last name, First name. "Title of Article." Title of Journal, vol. #, no. #, Year, pp. xx-xx.

Example: Smith, John. "Memory and Trauma in Contemporary Fiction." Modern Fiction Studies, vol. 65, no. 2, 2019, pp. 145-168.

c) Website

Last name, First name (if available). “Title of Web Page.” Website Name, Publisher (if different from site name), Date published, URL.

Example: “Climate Change and Health.” World Health Organization, 30 Jan. 2020, www.who.int/news-room/fact-sheets/detail/climate-change-and-health.

d) Chapter in an Edited Book

Last name, First name. “Title of Chapter.” Title of Book, edited by Editor’s Name, Publisher, Year, pp. xx-xx.

Example: Walker, Alice. “In Search of Our Mothers’ Gardens.” Black Feminist Criticism and Critical Theory, edited by Henry Louis Gates Jr., Pantheon, 1984, pp. 231-243.

APA 7TH EDITION

- Stands for American Psychological Association
- Mostly used in humanities and social sciences
- Author–Year- Page Number → In-text citations

IN-TEXT CITATION

They include author(s) and year; for direct quotes, also include a page number.

- According to William Wordsworth (1967), poetry is a “spontaneous overflow of powerful feelings” (p. 263).
- Poetry can be considered a “spontaneous overflow of powerful feelings” (Wordsworth, 1967, p. 263).

REFERENCE:

Wordsworth, W. (1967). Lyrical Ballads. Oxford UP.

APA STYLE (7TH EDITION) – References

APA references usually follow this structure:

Author, A. A., Author, B. B., & Author, C. C. (Year). Title of work. Source/Publisher. DOI or URL

a) Book

Author, A. A. (Year). Title of book: Subtitle in italics. Publisher.

Example: Morrison, T. (2004). Beloved. Vintage International.

b) Journal Article

Author, A. A., & Author, B. B. (Year). Title of article. Title of Journal, 34(2), 123–145. <https://doi.org/xxxx>

Example: Smith, J. (2019). Memory and trauma in contemporary fiction. Modern Fiction Studies, 65(2), 145–168.
<https://doi.org/10.1353/mfs.2019.0010>

c) Chapter in an Edited Book

Author, A. A. (Year). Title of chapter. In E. E. Editor (Ed.), Title of book (pp. xx–xx). Publisher.

Example: Walker, A. (1984). In search of our mothers' gardens. In H. L. Gates Jr. (Ed.), Black feminist criticism and critical theory (pp. 231–243). Pantheon.

d) Website

Author, A. A. (Year, Month Day). Title of page. Website Name. URL

Example: World Health Organization. (2020, January 30). Climate change and health. World Health Organization.

<https://www.who.int/news-room/fact-sheets/detail/climate-change-and-health>

CHICAGO CITATION STYLE

Chicago style has two systems:

- Notes & Bibliography (NB) → used in humanities
- Author-Date → used in sciences and social sciences
- You must choose one system and use it consistently.

In-Text Citation Guidelines

a) Notes & Bibliography (NB System) – Uses footnotes for citations instead of putting it within the text.

Text:

Academic writing is evolving rapidly.¹

Footnote:

John Smith, Academic Writing Today (New York: Routledge, 2022), 45.

In-Text Citation Guidelines

b) Author–Date System (Parenthetical) – Use citation within the text.

Format

(Author Year, Page)

Example

(Smith 2022, 45)

Bibliography / Reference List Guidelines

General Rules

- Title: Bibliography (NB) / References (Author–Date)
- Entries arranged alphabetically by author
- Use hanging indent
- Double-spaced
- Author name inverted: Last name, First name
- Titles:
 - Books & journals → Italicized
 - Articles/chapters → “In quotation marks”

a) Books

Footnote (NB): First Name Last Name, Book Title (Place: Publisher, Year), page.

Bibliography: Last Name, First Name. Book Title. Place: Publisher, Year.

Example

Footnote: John Smith, Academic Writing Today (London: Routledge, 2022), 45.

Bibliography:

Smith, John. Academic Writing Today. London: Routledge, 2022.

b) Journal Articles

Footnote: First Name Last Name, “Article Title,” Journal Name Volume, no. Issue (Year): page.

Bibliography: Last Name, First Name. “Article Title.” Journal Name Volume, no. Issue (Year): pages.

Example

Footnote:

2. Jane Brown, “Digital Writing Practices,” Journal of Education 15, no. 2 (2021): 78.

Bibliography:

Brown, Jane. “Digital Writing Practices.” Journal of Education 15, no. 2 (2021): 70–90.

c) Chapter in Edited Book

Footnote: First Name Last Name, “Chapter Title,” in Book Title, ed. Editor Name (Place: Publisher, Year), page.

Bibliography: Last Name, First Name. “Chapter Title.” In Book Title, edited by Editor Name, pages. Place: Publisher, Year.

Example

Footnote:

3. David Lee, “Teaching Writing,” in Modern Education, ed. Sarah Hall (New York: Oxford University Press, 2020), 120.

Bibliography:

Lee, David. “Teaching Writing.” In Modern Education, edited by Sarah Hall, 110–130. New York: Oxford University Press, 2020.

d) Websites

Footnote: First Name Last Name, "Page Title," Website Name, publication date, URL.

Bibliography: Last Name, First Name. "Page Title." Website Name. Publication date. URL.

Example

Footnote:

4. Mark Wilson, "Digital Writing Tools," Education Hub, March 10, 2023, <https://example.com>.

Bibliography:

Wilson, Mark. "Digital Writing Tools." Education Hub. March 10, 2023. <https://example.com>.

Note:

Include URL or DOI

Include access date if no publication date is available

Citation Tools Available on the Internet:

1. Reference Management Software:

Zotero (free, open-source; browser integration, plugins for Word/Google Docs).

Mendeley (free; citation management + PDF annotation).

EndNote (paid; advanced reference management).

RefWorks (subscription-based, often via universities).

2. Online Citation Generators:

Cite This For Me (APA, MLA, Chicago, Harvard).

EasyBib (user-friendly, often for MLA/APA).

Citation Machine (multiple styles).

BibMe (APA, MLA, Chicago, Harvard).

3. Built-in Citation Tools:

Google Scholar → “Cite” button under results for quick export.

Microsoft Word → “References” tab for in-text citations & bibliography.

Google Docs → “Tools > Citations” for APA, MLA, Chicago.

Databases (EBSCO, ProQuest, JSTOR) → often have “Cite” export buttons.

A close-up photograph of a vintage typewriter. The words "The End." are typed in a black, monospaced font on a light-colored sheet of paper. The typewriter's carriage and typebars are visible in the foreground, and the paper is held in place by a metal clip.

The End.

THANK YOU!